

Remedial Construction
&
Construction

John Ferriter

January 21, 2011

Three Topics

- Given the obvious constraints on what can and/or cannot be openly discussed at this time, how satisfied is Industry with current communications – too much/too little/too tentative; and what is the resultant impact or effect that might be having on your respective businesses
  - Too little and too tentative – understand that environment is still very fluid but can more information be shared
  - Captures are expensive, look closer a potential opportunities and try to determine ROI; may not bid as much
- If you can share, what adjustments / reactions are you initiating in response;
  - Makes it difficult to allocate IR&D resources without clear understanding of the direction of the program
  - With not as much to bid, need to look for other opportunities to evaluate
- What are our thoughts with regards the various “efficiencies” being planned / implemented by the Government?
  - Believe this is still round 1; Congress will work President’s budget request and we expect reductions, additions and overall budget totals to change
  - With the focus to free up $100B in “tail” (overhead) expenses so that the same amount can be plowed back into “tooth” (combat oriented expenditures) like procurement and R&D, when will impact on CBD programs be understood and shared