ROK Engagement Strategy Background

- Able Response was a Successful Table-Top Exercise (TTX) and Senior Leader Seminar Designed to Examine the Decision Making Process of Senior Republic of Korea (ROK) and US Military and Civilian Leaders Following a Biological Incident
- The CBDP Enterprise was a Key Facilitator in a Very High Profile Able Response TTX and Senior Leader Seminar in the ROK
 - First ROK Interagency Exercise in History
 - Highlighted Several Key Areas for Improvement
 - Will lead to Future Collaborative Efforts
 - Will Lead to Increased Research and Development, and Technical Exchange Opportunities, May Lead to Increased Foreign Military Sales (FMS)
 - Although Focused on ROK, Could Become a Framework for Future International Biological Defense Collaborations
- Policy, Non-materiel, and Materiel Recommendations were Well Received by Both ROK and US Forces Korea (USFK) Leadership
- Consensus was Gained for Continued ROK-USFK Collaboration on Biological Crisis Response with FY 12 Bio-defense Exercises and Training Events

Biosurveillance Trail Boss Overview

Biosurveillance Definition

“The term “biosurveillance” means the process of data-gathering with appropriate analysis and interpretation of biosphere data that might relate to disease activity and threats to human or animal health – whether infectious, toxic, metabolic, or otherwise, and regardless of intentional or natural origin – in order to achieve early warning of health threats, early detection of health events, and overall situational awareness of disease activity.” (HSPD-21)

Effective Biosurveillance Enables Rapid Response

- Early Warning of Illness
- Early Detection of Infectious Disease
- Situational Awareness of Health Threats

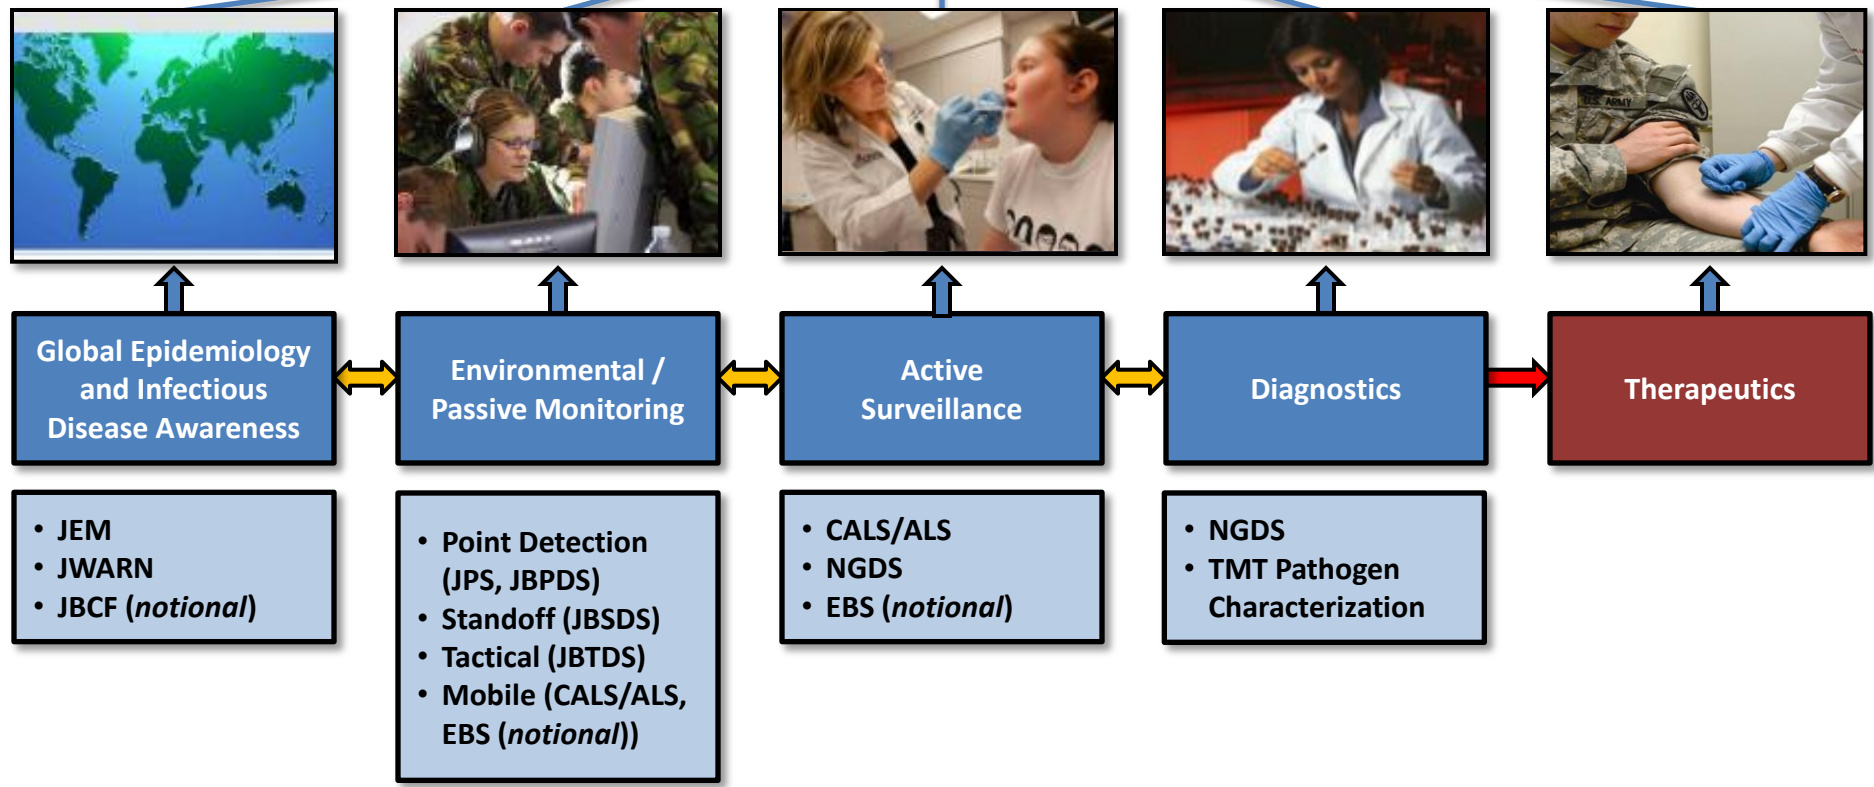

* Definition consistent with draft DoD Biosurveillance Guidance (February 2010)
