

AWARD NOMINATION FORM

DR. DESMOND G. NEWMAN AWARD FOR SUPPLY CHAIN EXCELLENCE

The Newman Award is presented annually to an industry individual in recognition of noteworthy contributions or meritorious service in the area of supply chain management and its implementation in supporting the defense manufacturing base. The award was established in 2016 by the National Defense Industrial Association to stimulate thought and develop programs that will benefit both industry and the public.

The award program encourages planning techniques or solutions to troublesome problems for supply chains supporting the defense manufacturing base. The award is presented in honor of innovator and founder of the NDIA Manufacturing Division's DoD Supply Chain Network Committee, Dr. Desmond G. Newman.

AWARD NOMINEES MUST:

- Be an individual from the private sector; groups and organizations are not eligible for this award.
- Receive this recognition for either a single action or lifetime achievement.
- Complete actions that have a positive and lasting impact.
- Engage in efforts related to supply chain management in support of the defense/national security industrial base (i.e. supporting the Departments of Defense and Homeland Security).

NOTE: Anyone with knowledge of a commendable action(s) may nominate a candidate. Such actions must be verifiable.
